A. READING

Dear Paula,

Greetings from Budapest. I'm here with two of my colleagues for a project about global understanding. We are twenty-one teachers from different cultures. We are studying on the basic cultural differences among our countries. Trying to understand each other's way of life is quite interesting. We talk about our daily routines and how they change from one culture to another. We eat different meals and we serve food in a different way. We learn how to order food in different languages; French, Polish, Italian, English and Turkish. Here in Budapest, we have lunch together every day and have a nice conversation. We give and receive souvenirs. Souvenirs are same all around the world. They are very lovely and colourful. They also make us happy. Sometimes a piece of amber jewellery from Warsaw, sometimes a hand knitted wool beret from Paris or a ceramic pot from Nevşehir tells a lot about the lives of the local people. Isn't it amazing? Souvenirs teach us a lot about different cultures. By the way, what would you like me to bring you from Budapest? Google it and surprise how much you will learn about Hungary. 😊 Souvenirs; the little bridges of culture. Write me back soon.

With love,

Defne
