Turkish Adana Kebab or Italian Pizza?

Have you ever tried a traditional food of another country or specialty of another city in your country? Two different types of traditional cuisine are introduced in this text. One of them is Turkish Adana Kebab. The other one is Italian pizza.

All kind of kebabs are common in Turkish and Middle Eastern cuisines. Kebab is known as “Adana Kebab” in all over the country. Meat products have very important place in nutrition of this region’s people.

‘Adana’ kebab is made with ground beef or a mixture of ground beef and lamb. It is a long, hand-minced meat kebab. Onion, garlic and Turkish spices are put in it that is treated on a wide iron skewer. Adana Kebab is served with grilled vegetables such as green chili peppers, tomatoes, onions and with bulgur or pilaf. It is eaten on a piece of Turkish flatbread (lavas) which is very thin and a traditional accompaniment to the kebab.

Italian food is very regional, and Italian pizzas so as well. Pizza is one of the world's most popular foods and a widespread fast food item. Italian pizza is best when it’s made with fresh, local ingredients.

The most important part is getting the Italian pizza dough. It gives the pizza its texture, holds together the flavors. Traditional Italian cuisine uses ingredients such as all kinds of meat, tomatoes, and cheddar cheese, sausage, salami, pepper, olives and corn. There are many types of pizza. That world-famous pizza in Naples is known as “pizza alta” (thick crust), but pizza in Rome is traditionally thin-crust and crisp. They are both very delicious. It’s important to remember that each dish is unique in its own culture. It is up to you which meal you choose.
